Winter 2015 Issue 1

Automotive Services Technology Program Director Roger Baran displays Jeep Renegade chassis donated to Baker College of Auburn Hills by Chrysler.

AUTOMOTIVE PROGRAM RECEIVES DONATION FROM CHRYSLER

The automotive services technology program at BCAH is very pleased to be the recipient of a generous donation from the Chrysler Training Center in Auburn Hills. Baker received a rolling chassis from a 2009 Jeep Renegade. The chassis is a twin to a full vehicle that Chrysler had previously donated.

Program Director Roger Baran is excited for the great benefits this provides to students. They can now get a fully exposed view of the suspension and brakes without being covered by a cab and without a limited view from underneath the car. The winter Intro and Suspension classes are already taking advantage of this new opportunity.

Along with the chassis, Chrysler also donated several machines, bringing the total donation value to approximately $25,000.

Historic home in Palmer Park, Detroit presents a new challenge for interior design students.

INTERIOR DESIGN STUDENTS TO WORK ON HISTORIC HOME

The Historic Preservation class has a real life challenge to work on this winter. The students have an opportunity to put their design skills to the test in a stately home in the Palmer Park district in Detroit. Under the direction of Program Director Ann Jacob, they will be researching, pricing, and compiling a comprehensive report to remodel several rooms in the home. They will be doing a complete layout for the kitchen and bathrooms, creating a master suite out of 2 average-sized bedrooms that will ultimately have a large walk-in closet and master bath, and turning the third floor of the home into an efficiency apartment. The basement, which features a terrazzo marble floor, will become an exercise and rec room. The redo is total as the home is down to the studs in some areas.

The Palmer Park district has recently experienced a neighborhood revival after years of decline. It includes a treasured nature park and historic woodlands, a public golf course, hiking and biking trails, and a splash park. Several upscale apartment buildings now accompany the grandeur of preserved homes designed by renowned architects including Frank Lloyd Wright.

ADJUNCT FACULTY OF THE QUARTER

Congratulations to John Pye and Char Ripka on receiving the Adjunct Faculty of the Quarter Awards for Fall 2014. This award recognizes overall excellence in teaching, customer service, and commitment to Baker College of Auburn Hills.

John Pye was nominated by a past student who entered his class with a fear of math. This student noted he was an older student who had attempted math on several occasions, without success, but credited Mr. Pye for providing a relaxing atmosphere and excellent teaching that made all the difference. Countless students recommended him for his commitment to their success. They cite his effort in meeting them where they are, and moving them to where they need to be. Several instructors indicated that he prepares students for the content they will face in future quarters. John is an asset to Baker College.

John Pye,
Faculty of the Quarter

Char Ripka had been nominated for the Adjunct Faculty of the Quarter Award by a student who stated that she had never enjoyed math, in spite of being good at it. The student felt for the first time that her math class was a good experience due to Char's smile and attitude toward the subject. Another student found her enthusiasm contagious, and appreciated her understanding and the way she explained the content. Char's supervisor writes that Char has a unique method of asking students in her math courses probing questions. The art of asking questions is perfected by her. She not only explains complicated concepts in simple terms but incorporates humor and makes everyone feel at ease with math. Char is enthusiastic about teaching math and every student feels it. Even the most math phobic student cannot help but get a little excited about the learning process. She is an excellent math instructor.

Char Ripka,
Faculty of the Quarter

Adjunct faculty of the quarter are considered for the Faculty of the Year award in June. They may be nominated for this award by students, other faculty, administrators, or staff.
